Courses in the Use of English (First Year)

A sound working knowledge of English is one of the greatest needs in Hong Kong life today. To meet this need the Department offers a carefully devised and integrated series of courses in the Use of English which are aimed at improving the students' ability to speak, write and understand English. General courses are offered for those who wish for a greater fluency in English for everyday purposes while the courses in English for Commercial Practice are more specifically related to the kinds of English used in commerce and industry.

All these courses comprise a continuous programme leading to the award of the Department's Certificate in the Use of English on successful completion of the final year.

Although the two main courses in the Use of English Programme are Use of English I and II, the only new courses to be offered in the Spring and Summer of 1971 are at First Year level (Use of English I). Those who successfully complete these courses may proceed to one of the Second Year courses in the Academic Year 1971/72.

As with all Extra-Mural courses, these are not intended for students in secondary schools.

The tutors for all these courses will be drawn from a panel of university graduates.

Entrance Requirements: A pass in English Language in the Hong Kong English or Chinese Certificate of Education or equivalent.

This course will consider a number of revolutionary "contexts" in the light of the personalities, programmes and "processes" thrown up in these convulsions of society. In a short series of classes such as this, it will, of course, be impossible to consider all the revolutionary situations in the old and new countries of Europe. The method adopted will be to take a number of "case-studies" and to examine the problems of power, class and ideology. These case studies will include the French Revolutions of 1789 and 1848, the Commune of 1871, the Russian Revolutions of 1905 and 1917. There will also be some discussion of the twentieth century revolutions of the Left and the Right. Finally, an attempt will be made to consider revolutions which can be broadly described as anarchistic and influenced by non-European political thought. This course is directed to the intelligent general student. It will be useful for teachers of history and of public affairs; but the value of this approach should result from the insights to be gained by this multi-disciplinary organization of the topic.
